The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 7-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Toda.

Toda figs. 4-6 and 9 teach the transducer structure including a top disk #42, spiral wound disc of piezo ribbon material #140 and backing disc #48. Reference to figs. 1-3 shows the piezo ribbon to be two layers of piezo material with appropriate electrodes wound onto each other.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Toda in view of Beurrier .

Toda, as discussed above shows the basic transducer, however, Toda lacks an insulated member upon which the piezo ribbon is wound. Beurrier (Figs. 8-15) teaches providing an insulating mandrel (e.g. #45) upon which a piezo electric ribbon is wound in a spiral. The advantage of the mandrel is ease in manufacturing the spiral, and prevention of crushing the device (eliminates a hollow center). Thus for at least these reasons it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide an insulating center post in Toda.
